American Newspaper Publishers Association

The American Newspaper Publishers Association is a non-profit trade association representing more than 1400 member newspapers throughout North America. According to the Association, its membership accounts for more than 90 percent of U.S. daily and Sunday newspaper circulation. It was founded in 1887 and maintains a technical research facility in Easton, Pennsylvania, and an editorial research facility at Syracuse University.

ANPA actively lobbies in cases dealing with First Amendment rights and in other matters important to the newspaper business. The Association's Government Affairs Department monitors and reports on issues affecting the newspaper business in the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government, both in the U.S. and abroad.
